Alicante

Alicante is located in the south-east of the Iberian Peninsula, directly on the Costa Blanca – one of the most beautiful Spanish coasts. The Romans named the city "Lucentum", city of light, and captured the character of this radiant palm-lined city facing the sea, which enjoys an extremely pleasant climate.

A hectic pace is rare here and the "Siesta" is still taken seriously. People relax among the beautiful boulevards and enjoy a coffee, an Horchata or a Granizado as they stroll around.

Although Alicante is at the heart of tourism on the Costa Blanca it has remained unspoilt by the tourist industry.

Despite its 330.000 inhabitants, Alicante is a town in which almost everything is within walking distance and where acquaintances often cross paths.

Stylish boulevards, the modern yacht port, the picturesque and architecturally interesting old town quarter, modern shopping districts, and the palm-lined sandy beaches provide a lot of variety and remain in the visitor's memories for years to come.

Granada

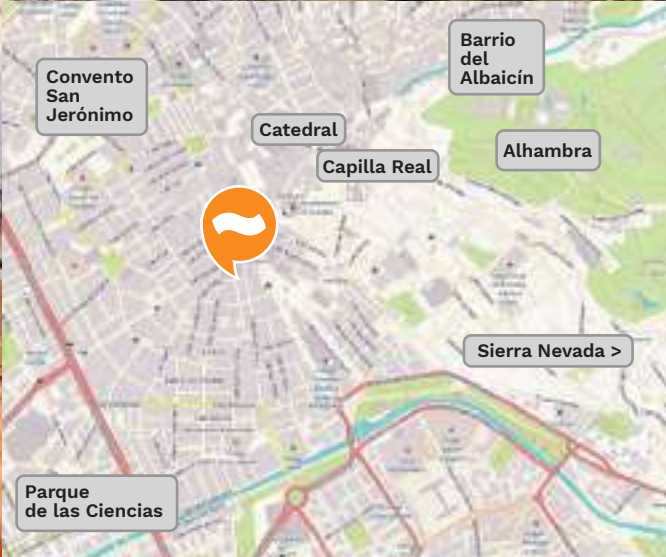

Granada (population 240.000), situated in the south of Spain in Andalusia, is one of the most beautiful monumental cities, including in its city-centre the most visited monument in Spain, the "Palace of the Alhambra".

It dates back to the last Arabic reign in the West, whose influence remains all over the city. By visiting Granada you have the chance to experience and breathe the "real Spain" in every corner of the city.

You can enjoy the mountains of Sierra Nevada, situated just 40 kilometres away from the city, particularly for skiing from December to April. Alternatively, you can visit the beach, situated 50 kilometers away, where the sun shines almost all year round, thus boasting its own tropical micro-climate.

Granada is a university city with a pleasant nightlife and an immense number of bars in the old part of the city where you will find a large variety of "tapas" offered free of charge.

Both younger and older people can find the atmosphere that suits them best, given the wide variety of cultural activities that the city offers all year round.

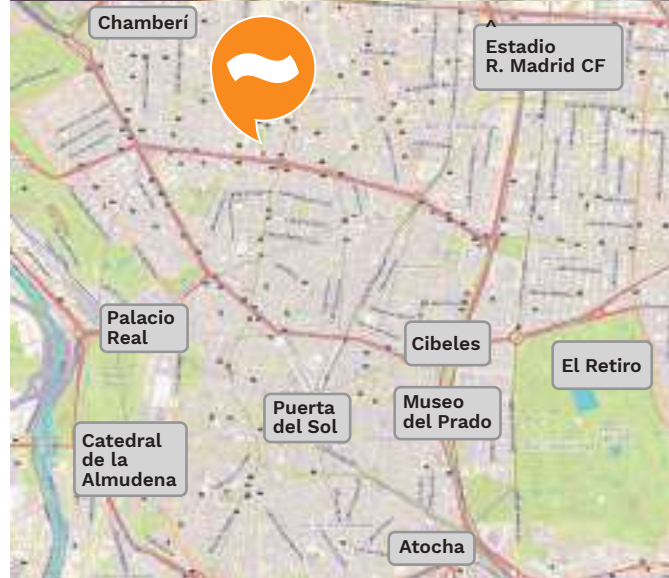

Madrid

Since its early days, people have come from all regions of Spain to settle in Madrid, thereby enriching the city with their own cultural traditions. However it was especially in the 20th century that the Spanish capital attracted people from all over the world, converting itself into an international metropolis where no one feels a stranger. Artists, writers and fashion designers have taken up residence in Madrid, after finding here the inspiration necessary to their creative work. Madrid is world-famous for its old cafés, cosy tapas bars and restaurants brimming over with life day and night. Visit the small traditional shops which have preserved the atmosphere of bygone days with their nostalgic interiors!

The wide variety of cultural venues - from concert halls and opera houses to theatres and museums of world esteem - as well as the architectural splendour of past centuries ensure that tourists from all over the world keep returning to Madrid not only to explore new places but also to revisit their favourite haunts.

Its large well-kept parks, in which the Madrid inhabitant takes a break from the hustle and bustle of everyday life, and its sunny squares with Mediterranean charm are welcome places to stroll and relax body and soul.

Visiting Madrid is necessary for any traveller who wishes to meet authentic Spanish culture and experience the enthusiasm for life of the Spanish people.

Barcelona

Barcelona is one of the most beautiful and fashionable cities in Europe. With a population of 1.7 million people and located on the Mediterranean coastline, it is the cultural and economic centre of Catalonia in northeastern Spain.

Taking a walk in Barcelona is unbeatable! There is gothic and medieval architecture in the labyrinthine Old Town, Gaudí's modernist buildings such as La Pedrera or La Casa Batlló in the Eixample quarter, Las Ramblas with its human statues, the Sagrada Familia, the Olympic village by the sea, the beaches just 20 minutes from the school and the Barceloneta quarter with its terraces to eat typical Spanish tapas.

All year round this vibrant city organises festivals like Sonar (the most important electronic music festival in Europe), Grec (a music, theatre and dance festival in summer), the World Music Festival and international events like the Formula 1 and Motorcycle GP.

You will enjoy sunny and mild weather all year, which makes Barcelona a perfect place to study Spanish anytime.

Courses

In order to ensure effective instruction and long term learning success, we apply modern teaching methods that are oriented toward the interests and capabilities of the students. Our teachers are pedagogically - didactically trained native speakers with a broad repertoire of teaching and learning techniques.

The necessary material (grammar, vocabulary, etc.) is taught in a diverse and varied manner.

Theoretical knowledge is applied regularly in practical areas through listening and speaking exercises, conversation exercises, discussions, and role-playing. The programme is rounded off by a selective use of media, which makes the class an unusually "exciting" experience, in which one learns not only how to speak Spanish, but also how to think and feel it.

Acommodation

IN SHARED APARTMENTS

The students live together with other students. We always try to reach the best atmosphere possible. Every apartment has common areas: kitchen, living room and bath rooms. All apartments are totally furnished so that daily life is easy and convenient. There is also a washing machine.

Students need to bring their own sheets and towels, apart from providing for themselves, in terms of cooking and cleaning.

WITH A SPANISH FAMILY

It is the best way to improve your Spanish outside the class and get to know the Spanish culture directly. The families we work with always welcome their students into the family warmly.

All the families have WIFI at home and provide sheets and towels. They also do your laundry and prepare the meals.

You can choose between full board which includes all the meals or half pension which includes the following: breakfast and lunch or breakfast and dinner.

In order to ask for a double room, it is necessary to apply together with another person as a whole.
